College Boy, Taken III with Cramp while Swimming in Dam, Dies in Deep Water. Was Popular among the Young People of Town.

John Keller, a student at Getty: burg College, and scoutmaster of the

With several friends he went to the dam near that town Sunday afternoon and was swimming successfully when he suddenly gave a terrified scream and sank in about twenty feet of water. His friends dived for him and tried other means of rescue but they were unsuccessful. His lifeless body was recovered some time later. An attack of cramps had been the cause of his sinking.

Young Keller was recognized as THE GIRL FROM THE SKY HE PWORTH one of the most promising students at the local institution. He came here ber of the Freshman class, intending to take the entire college course and then to go through the Theological Seminary, the ministry being his ultimate aim. He was very bright in his studies and regarded as an exceptionally valuable boy.

Before coming to Gettysburg he was educated in the public schools of Philadelphia and held a position as stenographer in an office in that city. He found spare time to become scoutmaster of a troop of Boy Scouts in the Lutheran church of which Dr. A. Pohlman, well known here, is the pastor. He took a keen interest in the work and upon his arrival at Gettysburg made it known that he would give whatever assistance he could

It was largely due to his efforts that the Camp Fire Girls and the Boy Scouts engaged in several enjoyable treasure hunts and had other outings the value of which was inestimable. Only two weeks ago he took the Scouts to Table Rock for a week's camping expedition, and followed that by helping with a similar camp of Camp Fire

> Before going on his camping trips at Table Rock he was asked whether or not he was proficient as a swimmer. He was very modest about all his attainments and responded sumply "I am not an expert, but I can swim." It is believed, that barring the attack of cramps which he suffered Sunday afternoon, he would have been in no danger from death by drowning.

> He was greatly interested in everything pertaining to the instruction and training of the young in the beauties of the out-door life and he will be sorely missed here by the many friends whom he acquired during his stay in Gettysburg.

John Keller was nineteen years age. His body was sent to Philadelphia where the funeral will be held from his home.

A meeting of the Boy Scouts will be held in St. James Chapel Tuesday morning at 8:00 o'clock to take action on Mr. Keller's death.

NEW PLOT TALK

General Orozco is Also Held, and They Will Be Charged With Violating Neutrality Laws If They Protest.

El Paso, Texas, June 28. - General Victoriano Huerta, former provisional president of Mexico, and General Pascual Orozco, one of his former principal generals, and himself a powerful leader in Mexico at one time, are involuntary "guests" of United States Collector of Customs Z. L. Cobb and Colonel George H. Morgan, Fifteenth cavalry, commandant of Fort Bliss.

It was learned that sleeping quarters were being prepared at Fort Bliss for both the distinguished prisoners, evidently with the view of accommodating them for some time.

The hint was also dropped that in the event of either man protesting at remaining "a guest" of Fort Bliss, warrants would be served upon them, charging conspiracy to violate the neutrality laws of the United States.

The warrants have been issued, but will not be served unless the two men protest at being held without warrants. The rathroad tickets of Gen Capture eral Huerta and party, though it was announced that they were en route to California, only read to El Paso.

United States officials learned that quantities of ammunition had been arriving at El Paso lately for mysterious consignees, and believe it was to have been used by Huerta and his the east.

Arriving at Newman, New Mexico, fifteen miles north of El Paso, on the Huerta was asked to become the guest of Collector Cobb as the former Mexican president stepped from the train. General Orozco, who was present to meet General Huerta, received the same invitation. General Orozco had arrived at Newman in the darkness of the early morning in a powerful automobile.

New York, June 28. - Mrs. Philip Snowden, who has arrived here on her way to the Women's Peace Congress in San Francisco, told of what a British officer had described to her as the most terrible of the tragedies of the battlefield.

"It is not the shrieks of the wounded as they fall," he said, according to Saturday broke all records. Mrs. Snowden. RUSSIANS ARE RETREATING laiser's Troops Launch New Drive Against Warsaw From North, Using Heavy Artillery.

London, June 28-The Russians are again retreating in Galicia, both to the north and south of Lemberg, and in Poland the Germans have launched another attack against Warsaw, in the form of a drive from the north through Przasnysz. The new blow at the Polish capital has been preceded by a terrific artillery action. The fact is recorded by the Russians themselves, but it is too early to say whether it means a serious offensive, the first clash having developed a bayonet encounter, the result of which neither side records. Berlin and Vienna do not make reference to the conict in this region, confining their statements to the Galician situation, where victories are claimed in various sectors, from the Bessarabian frontier to Rawa Ruska, north of Lemberg.

What is more important, the Germans claim that the Teutonic forces have crossed the Dniester northeast Heights After Three of Halicz and have driven the Russians some miles into the hills.

According to the official statement of the Austrian general staff the Rusmade a determined stand at positions to the east of Lemberg, were again in retreat along the entire front in that region. Fighting on the upper Dniester river, the statement says, still con-

The text of the statement follows: "After their defeat south of Lemberg the Russian main army retreated to the eastward and with strong forces took up a position upon the heights to the east of Mikolaiow. On this front our troops after several days' fighting captured the enemy's advanced positions, then proceeded to storm the enemy's main position and finally penetrated the same at numerous points, throwing back the enemy, notably along the sector near and to the south of Bobraka.

"Since early this (Sunday) morning the Russians again have been in retreat along the entire front. They also are retreating north of Zolkiew and north of Rawa Ruska, where they are retiring before our pursuit.

DROP TWO GAMES LETTERS FROM TO KID STRICKER!

Quintet of Hits is Best Gettysburg Correspondents send in Many Items Can Do in Two Games with Chambersburg. Costly Errors Lost the Second Contest.

A total of five hits in eighteen inn ings was the best that Gettysburg'. Patriots could register against Stricker in the two games at Chambersburg on Saturday, the kid spitball twirler, in the meantime, striking out twenty three men. As a result Chambersburg took the first game to 0, and the second 4 to 3.

In the first game Herril started to pitch and was forced to retire in the sixth with the score 6 to 0 against him and the bases full. Bitters replaced him and two more runs went across before the slaughter was stopped.

Gettysburg had excellent chances of winning the second game. Stair pitched and at the end of the sixth Williams dropped a fly and Dunn was safe at first, Francis hit through Kane and the next two were easy outs. It looked like Gettysburg's game for it was scheduled to go only seven innings but Kline hit over first base and both runners scored. In the eighth. after two were out, Snyder got to first on Kane's error, Dunn hi! through Plank, and Kane recovering the ball threw wild to first allowing Snyder to come across with the winning tally.

Mahaffie and Herril got the only hits of the second game but both were three baggers. The first game.

The Zuider Zee itself is a result of the bursting of the dyke. This happened in the thirteenth century, and in addition to Holland being cut virtually in two and Friesland being separated from the rest of the country by a turbulent sheet of water, hundreds of villages were submerged and some 80,-000 persons drowned. In 1421 there were terrible inundations, in which seventy-two viilages were swept away, with the loss of nearly 100,000 lives.

When the Dykes Burst.

More terrible still was the disaster of 1570, when at one time it looked as if the greater part of the country would be blotted out of existence by the angry seas. A continued and violent gale from the northwest had long been sweeping the Atlantic waters into the North sea and had piled them up on the fragile coasts of the provinces. The dikes, taxed beyond their strength, burst in every direction. Dutch Flanders to a considerable distance inland was suddenly invaded by the waters of the ocean.

I am not now on oath, but I might as well be for any slip I shall make in the exact truth. I was making pies in the kitchen, when some one came running in to say that Reuther had strayed away from the front vard. And here I found her, sir, right in the heart of these ruins. She was playing with stones just as Peggy dear is doing now. Greatly relieved, I was taking her away when I thought I heard John calling. Stepping up to the edge close behind where you are standing, sir-yes, there, where you get such a broad outlook up and down the ravine-I glanced in the direction from which I had heard his call-just walt a moment, sir; I want to know the exact time.

Stopping, she pulled out her watch and looked at it, while he, faltering up to the verge which she had pointed out, followed her movements with strange intensity as she went on to say in explanation of her act

"The time is important, on account of a certain demonstration I am anxious to make. Now if you will lean a little forward and look where I am pointing, you will notice at the turn of the stream a grot of ground more open than the rest. Please keep your eyes on that spot, for it was there I saw at this very hour twelve years ago the shadow of an approaching figure; and it is there you will presently ened at his aspect, which certainly see one similar, if the boy I have tried to interest in this experiment does not fail me. Now, now, sir! We should see his shadow before we see him. Oh, I hope the underbrush and trees have not grown up too thick! I tried to thin them out today. Are you watching, sir?"

He seemed to be, but she dared not turn to look. Both figures leaned. Did you mean that, sir?" intent, and in another moment she had gripped his arm and clung there. "Did you see?" she whispered. 'Don't mind the boy; it's the shadow I wanted you to notice. Did you observe anything marked about it?"

She had drawn him back into the ruins. They were standing in that one secluded corner under the ruinous gable, and she was gazing up at him very earnestly. "Tell me, judge," she entreated as he made no effort to answer.

With a hurried moistening of his lips, he met her look and responded, with a slight emphasis:

"The boy held a stick. I should saved." say that he was whittling it."

"Ah!" Her tone was triumphant. "That was what I told him to do. Did that surprised her more. In another moment she had accepted the situation, like the very sensible woman she was, and Mrs. Scoville had the satisfaction of seeing the promise of real friendly support in the smile with which Mrs. Yardley remarked: "It's a good thing for you and very good thing for the judge. It may shake him out of his habit of seclusion. If it does, you will be the city's benefactor. Good luck to you, madam. And you have a daughter, you say?" After Mrs. Yardley's departure Mrs. Scoville, as she now expected herself to be called, sat for a long time brooding. There was one thing more to be accomplished. She set

Veiled, but in black now, she went into town. Getting down at the corner of Colburn avenue and Perry street, she walked a short distance on Perry, then rang the bell of an attractive-looking house of moderate dimensions. Being admitted, she asked to see Mr. Black, and for an hour sat in close conversation with him. Then she took a trolley car which carried her into the suburbs. When she alighted, it was unusually late for a woman to be out alone; but she had very little physical fear, and walked on steadily enough for a block or two till she came to a corner, where a high fence loomed forbiddingly between her and a house so dark that it was impossible to distinguish between its chimneys and the encompassing trees

Was she quite alone in the seemingly quiet street? She could hear no one, see no one. A lamp burned in front of Miss Weeks' small house, but the road it illumined, the one running down to the ravine, showed only dark-

She had left the corner and was passing the gate of the Ostrander homestead, when she heard, coming from some distant point within, a low and peculiar sound which held her im movable for a moment, then sent her on shuddering.

It was the sound of hammering. Hearing this sound and locating it where she did, she remembered, with a quick inner disturbance, that the judge's house held a secret; a secret of such import to its owner that the dying Bela had sought to preserve it at the cost of his life,

THE ALLIES GAIN NORTH OF ARRAS

Joffre's Offensive Developing Successfully.

BATTLE WITH HAND GRENADES

Batties Are Constantly Being Fought In the Air as Well as on the Earth Along the Western Front.

London, June 28.-Following heavy artillery actions, which were particutarly severe in the region north of Arras, the alfes continue to make gains, according to the latest official dispatches issued by the French war of-

The infantry operations continue, but there is every indication that the allied offensive in the western theater of the war is the result of a long and carefully prepared project on the part of General Joffre.

That the scheme has not been in vain is acknowledged in the official reports made by the German war ofoce, in which it is said that the ailies still hold some of the elaborately designed trenches in an advanced position east of Detranchee which were captured by the Germans.

Incidentally, behind the modest reference made by the comman official statement regarding the use of aeroplanes, is to be found the fact that there are constant battles in the air as well as on the earth.

The fighting between the Oise and the Alene, in northern France, was of unusual violence. The Germans attempted to cut their way through the French lines at Quennevieres by a sudden attack under cover of darkness, in which great numbers of hand grenades were thrown into the French trenches.

The French met the assault with a rain of hand grenades and a hot fire from machine guns and rifles, under which the kaiser's troops broke and fed. An effort on their part to renew the attack broke down quickly and the French remained masters of the Mtuation

The Germans delivered a furious onalaught against the French positions at Bagarelle, in the forest of the Arsonne. They advanced after dark on Baturday evening, but were defeated and fell back to their own trenches. The Germans have been endeavoring to capture Bagatelle for months, without success.

A sudden advance of the Germans miles from Luneville, accompanied by a bombardment of the town with intendiary shells, was met by the French with an effective resistance, under which the Germans were first halted and then routed.

The French repelled a series of wight attacks at the Calonne trench, on the heights of the Meuse, holding all the advance positions they had gained in the recent fighting.

French aviators have inflicted conaderable damage on the railway station at Doual, fifteen miles northeast of Arras, which is held by the Germans. Abotu twenty bombs were drop-

Ride Stealers Found In Car Laden With High Explosives.

Camden, N. J., June 28.-Smoking on a train laden with high explosives from the Dupont powder works at Pennsgrove, William McConaghy, John Engle, James McGowan and Thomas McGeorge, all young Philauntil they were arraigned in police court on a charge of trespess.

Special Officer Guthrie, of the West Jersey & Seashore railroad, testified that he found the men in a freight car more than half full of explosives and that they were smoking.

The prisoners admitted stealing a ride while in search of employment, but expressed surprise that they were so near to danger while smoking. Sentence was suspended.

DEATH IN CREAKY BRAKE

It Scares Colt, Which Paws Prominent Farmer Out of Rig.

Lansdale, Pa., June 28. - Walter Sheppard, a wealthy farmer of Montgomeryville, just below here, was crushed to death beneath the hoofs of a team he was driving.

The screeching of a brake excited a skittish colt that was hitched with an older horse; the colt reared, its hoofs caught in the farmer's trouser's belt and he was yanked out of the rig, beneath the roofs of the horses.

The horses continued to run, and he was pounded to death beneath their hoofs. He was still breathing when picked up and carried to his home; but he died a few minutes later.

Tired of Delay on Frye.

Berlin, June 28-Ambassador James W. Gerard called at the German foreign office and presented the American note regarding the American ship William P. Frye, sunk by the German auxiliary cruiser Prinz Ettel Friedrich in the Atlantic. The note finds the German conditions for delay in the payment of compensation until the caes is passed upon by a prize court to be unconvincing and asks that payment be made now.

Too Much to Imagine. Reason why men are never sponsors at launchings is they couldn't be induced to waste a bottle of champagne on a vessel's prow.

$50,000,00 PROFIT IN POWDER STOCK DEAL

Holdings Bought From Gen. Dupont Jump in Value.

Wilmington, Del., June 28 .- The announcement that the Dupont common stock had jumped to $700 a share has caused considerable talk in this city among the holders of the stock, and, incidentally, it is being pointed out by some who claim to know the details, that the syndicate headed by Pierre S. Dupont, president of the powder company, which purchased the stock of General T. Coleman Dupout, is now delphians, were unaware of their peril $50,000,000 to the good on that trans-

> Just what was paid for the powder stock of General Dupont has never been publicly announced except that 15 and 20 per lb. All goods in same proit was between $14,000,000 and $20,-000,000. The purchase was made at a time when the stock was selling for less than $200 a share, and the price generally accepted as having been paid for the stock was $200 a share.

The syndicate, however, did not buy the stock to sell, but bought it so that absolute control of the powder company might remain in the family, but bankers and others are figuring the profits and calculating how much General Dupont might have made had he held on to it. Numerous others in Wilmington have made money on various powder stocks in addition to the members of the syndicate.

A Philanthropist | Have 'Dark Hair Spoiled

By SADIE OLCOTT

Miss Margaret Lawrence was an elderly maiden lady who, having pined for a mission, finally decided to take one upon herself. She selected the amelioration of the criminal classes. She visited them in prison, and many of them talked with her so persuasively about the unfortunate circumstances ly about the unfortunate circumstances. that had led them to become criminals that she came to believe they were all victims of their surroundings. This led her to advocate mercy toward them.

Miss Lawrence, who was wealthy, founded a society for helping criminals criminals up into a better sphere permanently, they persevered:

One of Miss Lawrence's objects was to induce persons against whom crimes had been committed to refrain from prosecution and to take the offender under their protection with a view to accomplishing his reformation. She found this a difficult matter. When one had been victimized by a confidence man he was usually bent rather on punishment than sympathy. When a woman lost her jewelry at the hands of a dishonest servant she considered it her duty to the state to prosecute the thief. Miss Lawrence spent much of her time in endeavoring to induce such persons to forego revenge and help bring about a new birth in those who had injured them.

Whenever Miss Lawrence saw an acount in a newspaper of a theft or a robbery she would go or send one of her assistants to the injured person to induce him or her to be merciful. One day, hearing that an elderly butler had been caught purloining his employer's valuables she went to the jail, saw the thief, who had been arrested, and found him to be a man of fifty, of good appearance and, according to his account, the victim of unfortunate cir cumstances. His name was Homer Hawkins. When asked how he came by the name of Homer he said that his father had been a pedagogue and an admirer of the great poet. Homer Hawkins wept bitter tears over the condition in which he found himself and so worked on Miss Lawrence's feelings that she went to his late master, secured a promise that he would not prosecute the case and took Mr. Hawkins under her own especial care for the purpose of giving him an op portunity to show how cruel fate had been to him.

Hawkins was made major domo of Miss Lawrence's household. He seemed too respectable to be called butler or to perform the mental services of a butler. The truth is be did very little of anything, because Miss Lawrence had nothing for so respectable a person to do. He attended to the purchase of household supplies, and since his mistress paid cash for everything she bought her major domo was intrusted with the funds used for the

Never was a man more particular in rendering his accounts. If from the multitude of payments at any one time he was at a loss to account for a dime or a nickel he was so much trou bled that his mistress sometimes ex pected that he would burst into tears On such occasions she assured him that so triffing an amount was of ne consequence, but in vain. He would mourn over the fact that after the un fortunate condition in which she had found him she would surely think him dishonest. He refused to be com

One day Hawkins went out to do the morning's marketing. He did not re turn at the usual time and in the meanwhile a lady called on Miss Law rence and she sought her kind offices in the matter of a criminal who had rob bed her. The lady was willing to forgive the culprit, but asked Miss Lawrence to undertake his reform. The adjes' car was at the door, and she begged Miss Lawrence to go with her to a police station to see the prisoner.

Miss Lawrence consented and on the way the lady told her that the criminal had called on one of her maids the evening before and had gone away with some valuable silver. He had been arrested in the morning. When Miss Lawrence reached the jail, and the culprit was marched out of his cell the good lady was astonished. He was Homer Hawkins. His benefactress was at a loss what to do in the matter, but, turning to the lady who had suffered, was about to plead for the prisoner, when an inspector showed her a number of articles belonging to her that had been ound in Hawkins' possession.

There was a difference in Miss Lawrence's neighbors losing valuables and losing them herself. She turned upon Hawkins, called him an ungrateful man, and then, after promising the inspector that she would appear against the prisoner, walked out of the office the picture of indignation.

This ended Miss Lawrence's individual work in the reformation of crimfnals. She disbanded her society, but in time joined one in which the work carried on was rather general than particular. Even this organized effort met with a very limited success. Nevertheless Miss Lawrence found that while particular reformations were not achieved, the condition of the criminal classes was bettered by the efforts of

PLANT FOOD SUPPLY

WAR DEMANDS A GREATER SUPPLY FROM THE AMERICAN PLANTER.

It is of the utmost importance that a soil should contain those eiements found in the plant; hence, it is almost self-evident that a fertile soil must contain a maximum quantity of those particular elements or constituents which are removed from the soil in maximum amounts by the crops grown and by this constant removal, it brings the soil to a low point of fertility, which makes prolific cropping impossible.

The planters future progress depends-How well he is going to restore fertility to the soil. In order to conserve the soil, you must maintain its fertility. In drawing together the raw material to create our brands, it is done with the idea to help the planter to build up soil fertility. The content of High Grade materials in our brands will build up your soil fertility with correct farming methods, and bring you quick returns for the money invested.

The influence of fertiizer is perhaps greater than any other factor in determining the profit that may be derived from the farm. Its influence is felt not only in the quantity of seed produced, but in the quality of the products derived from it. A specific fer-tilizer possesses certain capabilities, the value of which are de-pendent on selecting the Raw Materials to produce Pure Plant Food. By selecting is meant not only that the fertilizer should contain a sufficient amount of nutriment in the right proportions, but also that the materials furnishing the nutriment should be clean and free from any substance that may injure the growing plant or the quality of the product.

Farmers should realize when buying food for the plant that the value of the fertilizer depends on the material brought together to form the Plant Food.

Our Guarantees of analysis, and the constituent elements of the Fertilizers we offer can be implicitly relied upon. We use only the Best and Purest Materials at our factory. We invite comparison of our grades with other Brands. The verdict of the soil, the final and most important test, will sustain our claims. Give us a trial
